THE Louisville Herald carries an index on its first page that is very helpful to the busy reader.

DEAR reader, remember that in Turley & Co's voting contest for the ugliest man, your editor is a candidate.

HENDRICK says he does not want an office if he has to steal it from a Republican. What could Beckham say?

If men were as anxious to attain goodness as they are to achieve greatness, their very goodness would make them great.

THE historian of five hundred years hence, will refer to the murders and lynchings of the 20th century as the work of semi-savages.

THE greatest wealth that man can lose is courage. This once lost he follows the line of least resistance, which leads to the atmosphere.

A SOUTH CAROLINIAN shot at a preacher in the pulpit and the preacher returned the fire. That preacher had the courage to reprove sin in all its forms.

THERE were 250 murders in South Carolina last year. A character of society to be expected in a State that sends Ben Tillman to the United States Senate.

ALL the world is a court and every man is on trial. Against the few false witness is borne and they are punished unjustly, but the many get their just deserts.

If the Big Chiefs of the Republic-an party in Kentucky will conclude an armistice until after the election and turn their guns on the common enemy, the next Governor of Kentucky will be a Republican.

THE contest, which closes to-morrow for the Republican nominations for Representative and Circuit Court Clerk, has been conducted in a manner which does credit to each of the contestants and insures the unanimous support of the party at the November election, for the nominees.

A YOUNG New Yorker who had dissipated $20,000 in two years, went hence by the laudanum route. He left a note saying: "People are foolish to work and struggle when death can be purchased so easily and brought about so painlessly." The young gentleman is doubtless having a warm time, now.

THE Hartford Herald's insinuating question of "What does the City Council do with the $2,000 a year canal tax?" may lead its readers who do not know the members of that body, to believe they are plundering the city treasury, but it fools nobody here. Our town trustees are gentlemen of unquestioned integrity, however lacking they may be in spirit of public enterprise.

THAT $100,000 appropriated to buy perfumed testimony to hang Taylor and damn the Republican party, is about exhausted, and nobody has yet been hung. Not daring to make another appropriation, the Beckham gang has turned to the economical expedient of offering freedom to life convicts to furnish the desired testimony, and Youtsey will go on the stand next week.

ANOTHER judicial farce in Judge Cantrell's court is billed for Frank next Tuesday, when Jim Howard's third trial, on a charge of murdering Senator Goebel, will begin. The infamous Tom Campbell will conduct the prosecution and Henry Youtsey, who is, perhaps, the real murderer of Goebel, will be brought out of the penitentiary, under promise of freedom, to swear away the quitter.

lives of Jim Howard and Caleb Powers.

INQUIRER'S VOTING Contest for Most Popular Girls and Where the Rubber Tired Buggies Went.

HERE is a motion to organize a Farmers' Institute in Ohio county. Every other class of men hold meetings at stated intervals for an interchange of ideas about their business, and why not the farmers of Ohio county? Many other counties have perfected organizations of this character with great profit to themselves and why not ours? If a half dozen progressive farmers will authorize in person, by letter or telephone, the editor of this paper to sign their names to a call for a farmers' convention, we will publish it without charge and a meeting can be held yet before the crop season advances too far.

Admirers of the beauties in each of the counties presented candidates and the voting was split until the contest closed at noon Monday. The result of the contest as announced in The Inquirer of Monday evening and the winners are:

Mrs. One White has been on the sick list for some time.

In the solemn hush of night when old mother earth was wrapt in peaceful slumbers and all nature seemed at rest, the angel of death spread its wings over the home of Mrs. Amanda Park and awaited only the moment when her sword should fall. Two o'clock the chimes had played the hour when, in the gash of gentle sleep, death came and claimed the soul of Mr. Wm. Park. He was a member of the Methodist church, was a devoted Christian and a kind husband and father.
